Introduction to Postcolonial Southeast Asian Literatures: National Identity & Minority Discourse Winter Quarter, 2011 Tuesdays & Thursdays, 12:30-1:50

Instructor: Brian Bernards, M.A., C.Phil, bernards@ucla.edu Office Hours: Tuesdays & Thursdays, 11-12 or by appointment, Royce B02

Course Description:

This course offers a general introduction to the postcolonial literatures of contemporary Southeast Asia. By familiarizing ourselves with the dynamic modern histories of several Southeast Asian nations (Indonesia, the Philippines, Vietnam, Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, and Myanmar), we will examine and discuss how contemporary Southeast Asian authors imagine and evoke national and/or minority identities in novels and works of short fiction. In particular, we interrogate issues of colonialism, revolution, immigration, the frontier, indigeneity, multilingualism, multiculturalism, and transnationalism as they appear in national and minority discourses. No prior knowledge of Southeast Asian history, cultures, or languages is assumed or required. All readings are either in English translation or English original.

Required Texts (available at ASUCLA Bookzone):

- Course Reader (contents listed below)
- Pramoedya Ananta Toer, This Earth of Mankind (Trans. Max Lane, New York: Penguin, 1996)
- Duong Thu Huong, Paradise of the Blind (Trans. Phan Huy Duong and Nina McPherson, New York: Penguin, 1993)
- Botan, Letters from Thailand (Trans. Susan F. Kepner, Chiang Mai: Silkworm Books, 2002)
- Zhang Guixing, My South Seas Sleeping Beauty: A Tale of Memory and Longing (Trans. Valerie Jaffee, New York: Columbia University Press, 2007)

Recommended References (available for 2-hr reserve at College Library loan desk):

- Mary Somers Heidhues, Southeast Asia: A Concise History (London: Thames & Hudson, 2000)
- Teri Shaffer Yamada, Modern Short Fiction of Southeast Asia: A Literary History (Ann Arbor: Association for Asian Studies, 2009)
- Norman Owen, et al, The Emergence of Modern Southeast Asia: A New History (Honolulu: University of Hawai'i Press, 2005)

Student Requirements & Grading:

- 1) Weekly Readings & Seminar Participation (15%). This course is a discussionbased seminar, therefore you must demonstrate that you have critically read required weekly text(s) by conscientiously engaging in classroom discussions. Students are expected to contribute thoughtful comments and/or raise critical questions for the benefit of the seminar. I will provide a list of thematic questions prior to each session that will enable you to more efficiently tackle each week's readings and prepare to contribute (students may access these questions through the course website). You need to have finished the specified reading prior to attending each session.
- 2) Two (2) Small Group Panel Presentations (15% each 30% total). In small groups of 3 to 4 students, you will present your preliminary responses to weekly reading questions distributed by the instructor. The format for the presentation is flexible: certain questions may be delegated to individual students, or you may jointly present responses to the same question as a lively debate. You are not expected to have a cohesive or conclusive argument, but simply to have read the materials and prepared some preliminary thoughts on the major issues for the weekly reading. Panelists are expected to field questions and comments from the other students.
- 3) Two (2) Discussion Reports (10% each 20% total). One week following your panel presentation, you are required to submit a 2-3 page report, summarizing your individual responses to the specific discussion questions that you addressed in your presentation and detailing how your ideas have further developed or been challenged. You are welcome to draw attention to or quote specific passages in the readings that interest you or illustrate your arguments and ideas.
- 4) Final Paper (35%). The final paper is intended to be developed in guided stages:
 - Topic Proposal (5%). This 2-3 page proposal should be handed in at the beginning of the first session during week 8. It is very strongly recommended that you construct your paper topic from one of your discussion reports. Your proposal should include a thesis statement indicating what you intend to argue and how. I will provide a guide for proper citation format, such as paraphrasing and use of quotes.
 - Individual Paper Conference with Instructor (3%). Individual meetings of 10-15 minutes will be scheduled during week 8 so that we can discuss your paper topic and plan. Students are strongly encouraged to seek additional assistance from the College Composition Tutoring Laboratory (228 Sunset Commons, 310-206-1491) or visit me during regular office hours.
 - Final Draft (27%). A hard copy of an 8-10 page paper, double-spaced in 12-point Times New Roman font with a Works Cited page, is due in my mailbox by 5pm on Wednesday of finals week. No late papers will be accepted and no incompletes will be given without documented proof of a medical emergency. Graded papers will be scanned and returned to the student via email attachment in .pdf format over the holiday.
- Optional Extra Credit (up to 3%): Write a 1-2 page response to either or both of the Singaporean films viewed during week eight. Try to address the ways in which the films relate to the major issues of national identity and minority discourse we have been discussing in regards to literature. Due week 10.
