More than 200 faculty members in the division, working alongside scores of specialized lecturers, talented graduate students, and dedicated staff, all who carry on the age-old human project of interpreting the world’s legacy of language, literature, and art and introducing it to new generations of young people.

Welcoming our students to the Humanities starts here and by using a consistent look and feel we strengthen the experience for a student majoring in the UCLA Humanities.

Humanities is UCLA’s place of discovery, where we foster a lively community of ideas in which our students find their voices, their values, and their callings in the world. Join the dean, faculty, and students as we invite you to:
